Transplanting.

Young plants are usually transplanted in a wet time or, if convenient just before a rain. When the requsite rain cannot be had at the proper seasen, it is common to transplant and water them; that is, pour water around the roots after the plants have been set. And it is best when the water has soaked down to rake on a layer of dry soil to prevent baking or speedy evaporation. Transplanting in a dry time should always be performed late of an eve ning to give the plants the benefit of as long a time as possible without ex posure to supshine. Most plants will have stanted to grow within twelve hours from the time of putting out and then they are safe enough. But when this is not the case, as shown by wilting, it will be best to favor most tender plants with a shade through the first day.

Many persons effect to prefer a dry time and the foregoing process for setting our plants, and some go even further and vecammend not only a dry time, but also transplanting without watering the roots Peter Headerson, the New Jersey gardener, and anthor of "Gardening for Profit," dips his plants in water and then sets them in the dry soil, tramping it tightly around them with the foot. He says, page

"Instead of 'pudding' the roots in mud, we prefer to keep the plants dripping wet during the whole time of | One Month planting, so that each plant, as it is put in the soil, puddles itself by the particles of soil adhering to the wet root. Besides, the leaves of the plant being wet, will for some time, resist he action of the dry id r,"

A PERFECT HOREF -One who is considered as authority in horse matters, states that a perfect horse is one about fifteen and hell or sixteen hands high; a lengthy arched neck, sharp pointed ears; a large, full hazel eye; broad between them; not too long a face but a straight one; a large, open nostril; a strong under jaw to masti cate his food well, a good, round body (a big, full chest; large around the girth, denoting plenty of lung pow er; thin withers, and an animal standing erect on his fore legs. Such animals, it should be the object of breeders to produce, and this requires both judgment and care.

In California cream is placed in a thick linea cloth, and put in a hole in the sand dug for the purpose. It is then covered up with the sand and a board placed over it. The next morning, when removed, it comes out as fine butter as ever was seen taken from a churn. It requires but little working, as the earth absorbs nearly every particle of milk. It is now five days, says one who witnessed the process, and the butter is just as sweet and solid as butter can be.

Persons who have not been in the habit of drinking buttermilk consider it disagreeable, because slightly seid, in consequence of the presence of factic acid. There is not much nourishment in buttermilk, but the presence of the lactic acid assists the digestion of any food taken with it. The Welsh peas ants almost live upon oat cake and buttermilk. Invalids suffering from indigestion will do well to drink buttermilk at meal times.

To show how useful farmer's clubs are, it was stated in a recent meeting of the farmers club of Favette county Kentucky, that hundreds of dollars had NEATLY EXECUTED. been saved to the farmers of Fayette by an investigation into a proposed hog cholera cure by a committee appointed by the club. They rejected the remedy, and their researches en. abled them to propose another, which proved very successful.

The Hickman (Ky.) Courier learns thal Buffalo gnate are far worse than ever known before in the Madrid Bend country. In one neighborhood some 15 or 20 plow horses have been killed by them. Our informant represents them as fearful. They put horses and cattle through on quick time.

Mothers will be interested to know that turpentine is a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flanne, with it. and place the flannel on the throat and chest. In very severe cases, from three to five drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inward-

Onions are said to be an admirable food for fowls, or rather an adjunct to the ordinary food. If given regularly it is said, they will prevent the at tacks of the more ordinary diseases of poultry.

An Obio paper tells of a woman who washed her children's heads with modern whisky to kill nits. Her boys are well now, but their heads are as smooth as billiard balls.

The Giles county Press says the farmers are beginning to plant cotton at last in all portions of the county. They are unusually late on account of the heavy spring rains.

Venomous bites and stings generally owe their virulence to a poisonous acid. Wet saleratus will cure a bee sting in a few minutes.

that applicable and a amine. The steel engravings by the first artists of the country are perfect "gems of art." We have space to describe but two of them. The first is "The Night Watch in Mount Seir." Beside one of the mountain passes, with grand peaks towering, crag upon crag, on either side, stands the watch-tower, with its solitary watchman. Just through the pass can be seen the first bright streaks of approaching dawn. At the foot of the pass, wholly shaded by first bright streaks of approaching dawn. At the foot of the pass, wholly shaded by the overhanging crags, a party of travelers are encamped. They cry out to the Watchman: "Watchman, what of the night," and down through the pass comes reverberating that cheering cry: "The morning coneth." Again we pass on down the ages to the time when the long looked-for morning had come, and the Son of rightcousness had arisen with healing in His beams. Before us is a lone mounin illis beams. Before us is a lone mountain side, and a prostrate form kneeling on Health, Location, Soil, Etc.

Many of the most affecting and important scenes described in the Bible, transpired ander the splenders of oriental night. Sodom and Egypt, Beersheba and Babylon, Carmel and Gilboa, Olivet and Emmaus, Jerusalem and the sea of Galilee, have each, by night, been witnesses of the power and glery of the omnipotent Jehovah.

The author of "Night Scenes in the Bible," has followed the shadow of night across the landscape of divine revelation, and grouped together the sacred scenes which are made awful or impressive by the mantle of darkness.

Ile has succeeded in bringing to light "new and beautiful gems from the mine of bible truth," and has produced a delightful volume. The leading elergymen of the country have given it their most cordial approval as a "charming" and "instructive" work.

tain side, and a prostrate form kneeling on its uncushioned rock. The pale moon-beams creep among the erags, just revealing their barrenness, the stars shine dimly overhead; a huge night-bird flaps his wings and alone breaks the stillness of the unidnight hour; but glory surrounds the lowly form—it is Jesus, for "it came to pass in those days that He went out into a mountain to pray, and centinued all night in prayer to God." It was a sublime scene, and the representation before us tends to awaken the most devout reflections.
